Community

Southern York County, with an approximate population of 21,000 residents, is a rural area encompassing 66 square miles in the southcentral area of York County. Situated near the Pennsylvania and Maryland border, it is located 40 miles north of Baltimore, Maryland and 15 miles south of the City of York, Pennsylvania. Residents are primarily employed in these two cities and reside in the boroughs of Glen Rock, New Freedom, Railroad & Shrewsbury and the townships of Codorus & Shrewsbury which comprise the school district.

Curriculum

In the Southern York County School District, we believe that students learn best by experiencing real-world lessons emphasizing 21st century skills such as communication, collaboration, creativity, and critical thinking. In addition, we offer a diverse and challenging curriculum encouraging civil discourse to prepare students for post-secondary education and the changing workforce. The following is a summary of our course offerings

Instructional Levels

- 150+ courses are offered to students providing a broad spectrum of subjects.
- 18 Advanced Placement courses and 8 Honors courses are offered to academically talented and gifted students.
 - An additional 17 courses with a weight of 1.2 are offered.
- Dual Enrollment is available through partnerships with Penn State: York, York College of PA, Towson, and Harrisburg Area Community College.
- Independent Study courses are available to those students who qualify.

Course Weighting

Courses are weighted according to their degree of difficulty from 1.0 to 1.3. The averages for ranking are calculated as a cumulative weighted grade point average. This is done by calculating the product of the grade, credit weight for each course added to the previous quality point total, and then dividing by the total number of cumulative credits. Course weights can be found in parenthesis to the right of a course title on a student's transcript.
